Africa Section Communications/Mentoring Program Interest Form

*Mentors must be holders of a PhD degree or PhD students/conservation professionals with a track record of publications in peer-reviewed journals. They must also have organizational/institutional affiliation with a history of research/work experience in Africa.

*Mentees may be students or young professionals new at manuscript, proposal or abstract writing or young women who in addition to the aforementioned have other special needs. They should be graduate students or young professionals of African origin and may be based anywhere in the world, but their work will be on topics directly applicable to current conservation issues in Africa. Organizational/institutional/academic affiliation is essential. Mentees must be interested in having a mentor, have regular access to computers and internet access, and be able to express themselves through online communication. SCB membership is not a requirement for either mentor or mentee; however, preference will be given to SCB members.
